

2.2 Question 2

2.2.A Which ciphers offer harder reversibility - Block or Stream? Why?

Stream ciphers use an XOR operation on the plaintext to create ciphertext. Stream-based encryption is easily reversed by XORing the ciphertext outputs. Block ciphers encrypt more bits at a time, making the decryption comparatively complex.